DIARY OF A SIDE CHICK -MAKHWAPHENI

by Lesego Maake

“No one is born a savage. Life has a way of shaping us into what our parents never raised us to be. But what can we do, life has to be lived. We live in a world where you either eat or get eaten. Some of us choose to eat, but sometimes we turn into snacks. Ke life, nje”

How do you navigate through the corridors of rape, abuse, neglect and spirituality in life without a point of reference? In this thought provoking piece of art, Sharon Letsoalo will reveal these issues in a way that is provoking and entertaining, allowing you the freedom to paint the pictures you want to see in the characters. Sharon's journey resonate with the complexity of sexuality, blesser-culture, religiosity, patriarchy and spirituality. These are concepts that are no foreign in that we all know of someone in our lives who is going or have gone through the journey of these complexities. Gain a new view of life from a young girl who mastered the art and science of overcoming issues to make something of her experiences.

Sharon Letsoalo was raised in a middle class family in a small township of Ga-Kgapane, outside Tzaneen in Limpopo. Her mom is a nurse in a public hospital and her father worked at Shoprite as a supervisor. After completing her matric, she headed to the province of lights to further her studies like most young people from rural areas. The lights of the city dribble Sharon into a life most parents will never wish for their daughters. She finds residence in Sunnyside, Pretoria's capital of night life. She enrolls at a nursing college to follow her mom's career. Blessed with beauty and body to die for, she attracts t the attention of the rich and famous, most of them married. Sharon doesn't only date married men, she is also involved with other women. She meets JT, who becomes a long-time friend and occasional shag buddy. Besides occasionally sleeping with Sharon, JT becomes a fountain of strength whenever trouble catches up with Sharon. Her life turns for the worse when the wives and girlfriends of the men she is involved with fight for what belongs to them. She loses friends and those she used to be close with because she can't close her legs. After surviving kidnapping, miscarriage and near death encounters, she suffers the most traumatic experience when she is raped in a foreign land.
